

The heatmap displays the relationship between the number of variables (x-axis, 0 to 10) and the number of clusters (y-axis, 1 to 10). The color scale ranges from dark red (high relationship) to dark blue (low relationship). The heatmap shows a strong positive relationship for low numbers of variables and clusters, which weakens as the number of variables increases.

